++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Isolated showers across the north tonight, otherwise clear and frosty.

This Evening and Tonight:
Limited early evening brightness, between occasional showers, these largely dying out from late evening but a few may remain along the north coast. Dry and mostly clear overnight elsewhere, combining with light winds to bring frost to some. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Friday:
Cold but generally dry start with occasional bright and sunny spells. Isolated showers will develop from late morning, but these generally on the lighter side. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Fair start to Saturday, but strengthening winds and periods of rain soon spreading from southwest. Thereafter showers or longer periods of rain, heavy at times.
